Aeromedical services information management system (asims).

MEPRS is a system with a database of all demographic, limited medical, aptitude tests and other administrative information on applicants to military service (i.e., includes those who do in fact enlist, as well as those rejected). WCRS is a central repository of administrative reports (DD1300, Report of Casualty) of all active duty military deaths. EMEPRS (USMEPCOM—Military Entrance Processing Reporting System, U.S. Military Entrance Processing Command). The DoD Comprehensive Clinical Evaluation Program (CCEP) provides a systematic, in-depth medical evaluation for DoD beneficiaries (Persian Gulf War veterans now on active duty or retired; members of the full-time National Guard who are Persian Gulf War veterans who are members of the Ready Reserve/Individual Ready Reserve/Standby Reserve/Reserve who are placed on orders by their units; and eligible family members of such personnel) who are experiencing illnesses that may be related to their service in the Persian Gulf. Provides uniformed services medical treatment activities with the capability for registration and tracking of cancer patients' records, course of treatment, outcomes, test results, and quality of life of the patient. This is part of a tri-service effort to provide a means of sharing data between the military services and civilian companies for joint research studies. The Army is the executive agent for this system. F-TEAM (Troop Exposure Assessment Model). The Serum Repository is a serum bank of all service members, maintained by the Army and Navy for sera stored since 1985. ACTUR (Automated Central Tumor Registry). Database set up to track results of individual's HIV tests, Army HIV Data System (USAHDS) maintained by USACHPPM. DMIS provides a large repository of patient level, normative, population and financial data to support the formulation and execution of plans, programs, and policies of the assistant secretary of defense (health affairs) and supports the information needs of the military departments' headquarters staff and health care analyses. Our current capabilities include: Composite Healthcare System (CHCS) Armed Forces Health Longitudinal Technology Application (AHLTA) Aeromedical Services Information System (ASIMS) AF Corporate Health Information Processing Services (AFCHIPS) Coding Audit Review System (CARS) MEDWEB Telerad Medical Health Systems (MHS) Integrated Clinical Database (ICDB) Population Health Portal DoD Trauma Registry Digital Dental Imaging System (DDIS) Military Orthopedic Trauma Registry (MOTR) ESSENTRIS A.DMIS (Defense Medical Information System). ACTUR provides a single system to all DoD inpatient facilities for meeting the services standards, American College of Surgeons and state requirements for cancer programs. Once a participant has completed the examination process, copies of examination results are forwarded to the CCEP Program Management Team (PMT), where they undergo quality assurance procedures, and the data are entered into the master CCEP database. H.ANSR (Army/Navy Serum Repository). Computer link of all relevant medical and personnel databases to describe population denominators. DMIS is a centralized, non-deployed set of applications software and databases that support the collection, integration, validation, distribution, and analysis of MHSS data concerning population, cost, utilization, and medical treatment data. B.DMDC (Defense Manpower Data Center). The TEAM is a database integrating GIS technology to incorporate USACHPPM air pollution data from the PG, NOAA modeling for the period of the burning oil well fires, satellite imagery of the geographic extent of the oil fire plumes, troop movement data, and PG exposure and toxicologic data as available. C.CCEP (Comprehensive Clinical Evaluation Program). The database supports automated research capability and demographic reports. S. A duty station location file will allow tracking of the individual's geographical location at any point in his/her career. D.WCRS (Worldwide Casualty Reporting System). This repository is tied to the U. This includes IM/IT infrastructure (i.e. enterprise network, data hosting applications, data at rest/data in transition, and client services), application portfolio and business processes as they evolve in the emerging defense health arena. DMDC maintains central personnel databases. C.DMED (Defense Medical Epidemiological Database—under development). Back to Top Skip to main content Skip to sub-navigation Woodbury Technologies has a long history with providing medical, and medical IT services for both the Army and Air Force. Future databases will be added to provide TDY data, immunization and outpatient data, and other data of interest to the research community. We also possess an in-depth understanding of Clinical Informatics Support programs such as workforce development, clinical business intelligence and emerging major medical systems portfolio support. The Central Research Databases Project consists of several major tasks: identifying the data requirements of researchers in a variety of areas, such as epidemiology, occupational medicine, public health, preventive medicine, and medical readiness; developing a longitudinal, relational database for data, cross-mapping data between service branches; and developing user-friendly software to permit remote access to the Air Force and Navy data.
